Contribution Guidelines

We welcome contributions to this project! Here's how you can help:

Translation

One of our main goals is to make this paper accessible in multiple languages. If you'd like to contribute a translation:

1. Fork the repository
2. Create a new branch for your translation (`git checkout -b translation-[language]`)
3. Create a new folder in `docs/[language-code]` if it doesn't exist already
4. Translate the content from the German version to your target language
5. Submit a pull request

Content Improvement

If you'd like to suggest improvements to the content:

1. For minor changes (typos, clarifications), you can directly submit a pull request
2. For larger changes or additions, please open an issue first to discuss your ideas

Setting Up GitHub Pages

For repository maintainers, here's how to enable GitHub Pages:

1. Go to your repository on GitHub
2. Click on "Settings"
3. Scroll down to the "GitHub Pages" section
4. Select the branch to publish from (typically `main` or `master`)
5. Select the `/docs` folder as the source
6. Click "Save"
7. (Optional) Set up a custom domain if you have one

After enabling, your site will be available at `https://[your-username].github.io/Autismus/`

Code of Conduct

- Be respectful and inclusive in your communications
- Recognize that experiences with autism and neurodiversity are diverse
- Focus on evidence-based approaches and constructive feedback

Thank you for contributing to a better understanding of autism!
